I enjoyed your talented presentation on the Black West at the Museum under the Arch, and have found myself reflecting on it often and wondering if you would ever return. I am working with children that have learning disabilities. These children range in age from ten to thirteen-years old. I would like to develop some of your stories and ideas to use as a tool for my students.

You have no idea how much a difference you have made in our students. For a number of days, they continued to talk about the things they heard you say. You have been given a priceless gift to be able to touch kids' hearts like few I have ever known – another thing for which I envy you.

Thank you for coming and telling us stories about Africa and about cowboys. It was great! I went home and told my mama and daddy everything you said.
